

Jobenomics Chicago White Paper

29 January 2019

Jobenomics Chicago is a grassroots movement focused on mass-producing, highly-scalable startup businesses, located in the most impoverished communities in the Chicago metropolitan area starting with the South Austin and Englewood neighborhoods—2 of the 77 most impoverished communities in the City of Chicago. JChicago’s goal is to produce 6,000 new jobs within 5-years by mass-producing minority-owned startup businesses that remained anchored in these communities. JChicago’s ultimate objective is to create sustainable careers for the 38,000 unemployed and sidelined citizens, who are no longer looking for a work, in South Austin and Englewood who want a job or start a business.

Jobenomics Chicago Business Initiatives	Jobs
Urban Agriculture & Affordable Homes/Businesses (Indoor Hydroponics & Vertical Farming)	1,000
Urban Mining & Material Reclamation Facilities (eCycling)	800
Renewable Energy & Green Micro-Businesses (Solar Installation/Maintenance, Energy Services)	600
Direct-Care & On-Demand Independent Contractors (Health, Elder, Child, Behavioral)	1,500
Digital Economy & Digital Academies (eCommerce, eSports, App/Bot Developers)	1,500
Community-Based Business Generator & Entrepreneur Co-Working Enterprises	600
	6,000

As shown, JChicago has six major business initiatives, all with detailed business plans and proven technology. For the Urban Agriculture program, Jobenomics has arranged financing from an Opportunity Fund for land and equipment acquisition in a designed Opportunity Zone in South Austin and Englewood. JChicago is also in discussion to create a Jobenomics Opportunity Fund for the dozens of Opportunity Zones throughout Chicago. These under-resourced communities have difficulty attracting big companies but can mass-produce micro and single-person owned nonemployer businesses.

Jobenomics concentrates on the process of creating and mass-producing startup companies and jobs. Jobenomics’ principal focus is on citizens at the base of America’s socioeconomic pyramid with special emphasis on minorities, women, youth, veterans and other hopefuls who want to develop a skill, career or start a business. The Jobenomics National Grassroots Movement has an estimated following of over 30 million people via media, website, blog, and lectures. Jobenomics.com receives tens of thousands of monthly page views with the majority the viewers spending a half hour or more online, not counting time spent reviewing downloads of Jobenomics’ eleven books and research on economic, community, business and workforce development. Today, Jobenomics has garnished wide-spread support for its economic, urban renewal, small business, and workforce development efforts. Two dozen U.S. communities have started Jobenomics initiatives led by local community leaders. In 2018, Jobenomics America TV, a weekly show, was launched associated with various online content providers.
